

Practicing Pediatrics in an Unequal World

Dr. Yogesh Jain

Monday, October 2nd
12:00 pm
Hope Auditorium

Please join the Global Health Center as we kick off our Global Health Conference week with a Brown Bag Lunch Lecture by Dr. Yogesh Jain. Dr. Jain obtained his medical degree in Pediatrics from the All India Institute of Medical Sciences in New Delhi. In 1999, he founded a rural community health program in central India that provides primary care to indigenous people from over 3000 marginalized villages. He has a passion for addressing technical, operational, economic and political issues that determine the health care for the rural poor through clinical care, observational research studies, developing appropriate health related technology, training, and lobbying.

Observing health and illnesses through the lens of hunger and extreme poverty, he has been a strident believer in the continued role of the state as the primary provider of social services and remains a vocal advocate for this on provincial, national and international levels. Dr. Jain is also a member of the Lancet Non-communicable Diseases Commission, a commission tasked with rethinking global policies to broaden the non-communicable disease agenda in the interest of equity. Please join us as we welcome Dr. Jain to CHOP.

Brown Bag Lunch Lecture for Staff and Faculty. Lunch will be provided to pediatric residents as part of the Noon Conference Lecture series. ***
